News from FLUX Management

Dear Customers and Business Partners,

As this is true for many other companies, FLUX is currently facing an unprecedented challenge to protect health & safety of it's employees under the Coronavirus pandemic while keeping it's business up and running.

The management team has taken a number of actions to continue to be there for you and to ensure reliable delivery of products and services to you. Many of our employees in admin functions are working from their home offices and you will reach them under your known contact data.

With our suppliers, we are in frequent exchange to ensure on-time material supplies and we have also adapted our logistic processes to the new conditions of work. In individual cases, however, we cannot avoid longer delivery times.

In order to reduce contagion risks, our employees work consciously to the current hygiene guidelines and recommendations of respective authorities.

On behalf of the entire FLUX workforce, I'd like to thank you for your trust and for your loyalty during this period of great uncertainty.

Take care and stay healthy!

Yours sincerely,

Klaus Hahn
Managing Director
